AMISH MENNONITE CHURCH CEMETERY

EL01

SITUATED in Elk Lick Twp. Somerset Co. Pa, near Amish Mennonite Church, 1/4 mile west of Niverton; 1 1/2 miles east of Springs.

THE Cemetery of the Amish Mennonite Mensuites at Niverton, in Elk Lick Twp. was started about 1882. Prior to this date this denomination had no regular houses of worship, but held their meetings in the dwelling houses of the members. Funeral services were also held in dwelling houses, therefore there were scattered local grave yards started in many sections.

In 1881 this church built 4 church houses (generally called meeting houses) One at Niverton, one near Summit Mills and two in Garrett Co. Md.

Cemeteries were soon started at all of these churches, where practically all of their interments are now made.

HERSHBERGER GRAVE YARD EL15

SITUATED near Springs, Elk Lick Twp. Somerset Co. Pa. on farm now owned by Gideon Brenneman, about two miles east of Springs, and about 500 yards southeast of the farm buildings.

P.H.

(This was undoubtedly Peter Hershberger, the father of Daniel. Peter Hershberger was instantly killed by a falling limb of a tree while on horseback, riding in company with Dr. Muckenhaupt, who was a doctor and preacher combined. This happened at a point about 1 1/2 miles S.W. of the present Post Office of Springs. There is a grand daughter of Peter Hershberger still living, Mrs Tillie Stevanus Summy active in body and mind at the age of 91 years, as she knows about this only as a matter of tradition, it must have happened more than one hundred years ago. This is the most remote ancestor that I have any information about of the large number of Hershbergers in this section and in states farther west

Hill Cemetery, situated in Elk Lick Twp. Somerset Co., Pa. one-third mile north of Springs Pa.

Local History:

This cemetery, located on a hilly field on the C.H. King farm, and overlooking the village of Springs was started in the year 1900. It was then owned by W.C. Livengood, and is still held by his heirs. It has served not only as a family burial ground for the Livengood kin, but also, to some extent, as a community graveyard - though it is not as generally used as the Springs Mennonite Cemetery

About 1800 Amy Penrod, (daughter of John and Martha Penrod) married Samuel Brown who was from Cecil County Maryland.

"It is not known how long father remained in the neighborhood of his marriage, but his first venture was to the farm of Joseph Leichty, about two miles above Meyersdale on the Castleman's river.Some of the earlier children were born here. Willie, the second child, died and was buried. tradition says, in the garden at this place. Joe Leichty must have been a good man, as my mother always spoke of him in the most affectionate manner."

There are probably 70 graves in this cemetery that have no identifying marks. Quite a large number still have the undertaker's markers, some still legible and some are not.

700 graves.

Known as "Old Cemetery", situated on a hill at the eastern end of Salisbury, Elk Lick Twp. Somerset Co. Pa.

Local History:

This old burial place usually referred to, by the town people, as "The Old Cemetery on the Hill" to distinguish it from the newer, Odd Fellows Cemetery of Salisbury, is undoubtedly the town's first burial ground. There seem to be no records available to tell us just when the cemetery was started, but the oldest inscribed date of death found therein is 1815. It was in this same year that Peter Shirer, one of the town's founders, built the first store in Salisbury but as the beginning of the town dates back to 1796, it is probable that some of the many uniscribed graves are older than 1815.

To get an accurate record of the number of graves here is practically impossible because of the haphazard unsystematic way in which the older graves, with field stone markers, are arranged. In many cases a headstone or a foot stone seems to be lacking, and the graves are so spaced that one is likely to mistake the headstone of a child's grave for the foot stone of an adult one, or vice versa. Also, there is no way of determining whether the various loose stones, lying about here and there (some inscribed) or leaning against trees, belong to graves yet in the cemetery but no longer evident to the eye, or belong to some of the former graves from which bodies were removed and transferred to the town's newer cemetery. However, it is safe to estimate that there are at least 270 persons buried here, most of them people who died before 1880. There are comparatively few graves after that date, though there are several since 1900, and one in 1933

Two interesting points might be noted in connection with this cemetery. The one is the fact that two or three veterans (the one German born) of the Revolutionary War are found buried here. The other point is the occurrence of a rather striking phenomenon. When the body of one Henry Brewer, an old man, was taken up and removed to another cemetery some years ago, it was found to be completely petrified, and recognizable to former acquaintances. This hardening process had not apparently affected the other bodies that were moved from the cemetery.

ELLIS SHOEMAKER BURIAL GROUND

EL34

Situated $\frac{1}{2}$ mile north east of Springs Post office, 400 yards south east of the buildings. Chk Licks trip

Quite a large number of graves in ground, but only one of them inscribed, that of George Folk.

G x F Oct. 25, 1761

D. Dec. 25, 1825

(This was undoubtedly George Folk. The most remote ancestor of the Folk clan in this section)

One grave. (Jacob Folk, born Dec. 6, 1790, Died March 1858

Two children of Jacob Folk (Abraham Folk, age 9; Christina Folk age 7; these children were burnt to death when their house burned at night)

(Four more of the Folk children are also buried here;

ANNIE FOLK - Child

WILLIAM FOLK - child

Jonas FOLK - Infant

ELIZABETH SAYLER FOLK)

PETER SMITH

MATHIAS SHOEMAKER

JACOB HERSHBERGER - child

NANCY HERSHBERGER - child

HENRY HERSHBERGER - child

CATHERING child

HARRIET FOLK - child

(It is said that most of these children, died during an epidemic of a very malignant type of dyptheria)

(PHILIP HUFFERT is also buried, HUFFERT froze to death on a cold and stormy winter night. His body lay under a deep snow drift, and was not found for three month, before the snow melted and exposed the body. Philip was roaming nature and had no family connections, therefore he was not missed for a long time. This happened quite near where this burial ground is located)
